Summary

HaystackID®, a premier eDiscovery services provider, is proud to present an innovative initiative designed to support an often-overlooked community within our workforce – the military and their families. The HaystackID Armed Forces Empowerment Program is a manifestation of HaystackID’s enduring commitment to our armed forces, offering targeted employment opportunities that recognize the unique challenges and unparalleled dedication of military families. In the following narrative, we delve into the specifics of this ground-breaking program and how it underpins our core values of inclusivity, support, and appreciation for those who serve our country.

Overview

HaystackID, a specialized eDiscovery services firm known for supporting law firms and corporate legal departments, is pleased to introduce its HaystackID Armed Forces Empowerment Program. Recognizing the unique challenges that military families often face in maintaining stable employment due to frequent relocations, this program is designed to offer opportunities, resources, and tools that help these dedicated individuals find meaningful employment and enhance their quality of life.

Central to HaystackID's corporate culture is a deep commitment to supporting military families. This commitment stems from understanding the invaluable sacrifices these individuals have made for our country. We believe in fostering a partnership that connects military members, their families, and our broader community. This approach provides a working environment that enables military members and their families to contribute their unique skillsets and facilitates their ability to balance professional demands with family life and other responsibilities.

The HaystackID Armed Forces Empowerment Program is tailored to active military personnel, veterans, reserve military, and their spouses, provided they are licensed attorneys, JDs, or paralegals. This approach sets the program apart from our existing offerings by allowing us to address the needs and skills of a highly valued segment of our population.

For reviewers who participate in the program, the benefits are twofold. First, they join a team of individuals that recognize and value the military. Second, the program offers reviewers who participate in the program the flexibility to work from home, irrespective of location, and set their hours. This approach not only enables them to earn an income but also reassures them that their efforts and those of their spouses are appreciated.

From a client perspective, the program offers an opportunity to show support for military families by staffing them on matters and allows clients to tap into the unique skill sets and expertise military families bring to the table. This skill set includes hard work, enthusiasm, and diverse industry knowledge and specializations.

Reviewers interested in joining the program can apply through the ReviewRight® platform. As part of the application process, they will be asked a series of questions, including whether they or their spouses are affiliated with the military. Upon the program's launch, clients will also have the option to specify their preference for having their reviews staffed with this team.

HaystackID continues to provide next-generation managed review services that incorporate artificial intelligence and staffing marketplace capabilities as part of our broader offering. ReviewRight Match AI™ and ReviewRight Staff™ are two key services that leverage the power of AI and a global document reviewer marketplace to match certified candidates' qualifications with specific staffing needs.

At HaystackID, we're proud to champion programs and solutions that address unique legal enterprise needs while always prioritizing security, privacy, and integrity. For more information about HaystackID and the HaystackID Armed Forces Empowerment Program, please contact us today.
